extension functionality simple

Jesper K. Thomsen has worked with many different types of products/designs in his career as a designer. Central to all his designs are functionality and keeping things as simple as possible. The simplicity also applies when the products are being used.

Mindo 113 is simple in its design expression and functionality yet depends on a highly refined extension system allowing the user of the table within seconds to extend the table and prepare for more guests to join.

Designed for outdoor living it requires very little maintenance so that you can enjoy spontaneous moments with friends or traditional Sunday dinners with your family.
